activities on March 2nd, many schools were able to reschedule events or had already planned them for later in the week. Running Brook Elementary hosted Governor Martin O'Malley, County Executive Ken Ulman, HCEA President Ann De Lacy, MSTA Vice President Betty Weller, Superintendent Sydney Cousin, school board members and a host of parents, volunteers and central office staff on March 5th. A Quick Look at the Results of the HCEA 2008-2009 Job Satisfaction Survey

The following are random excerpts from the 2008-2009 HCEA Job Satisfaction Survey:

“The most important reason for conducting the Job Satisfaction Survey is to improve the quality of the professional lives of our members.”

- “I am in an affluent school and I feel we are being pressured to teach to the test because of expectations of test scores. We need to get the message to administrators that test scores are not the only way to access student learning.”
- “I am sure that HCPSS offers the possibility to advance professionally, but this is often not the case within my building.”
- “Administrators have not backed me up when I’ve had to deal with academic honesty issues. An administrator put pressure on me to raise a student’s grade.”
- “When a faculty member calls out a student for academic dishonesty, they are in a very precarious position. We are now the accuser. This means we are now more like a persecutor than a teacher. They are basically required to make a case like a lawyer would and argue it before an administrator. This is time consuming and adversarial and pits us against very powerful parents who are more knowledgeable in legal matters and have more time than we do.”
- “_____ is the greatest place to work because we are supported fully by administration.”

The 2008-2009 HCEA Job Satisfaction Survey was distributed to HCEA Reps on Wednesday, December 17, 2008 and collected by the HCEA office on Friday, January 16, 2009. The most important reason for conducting the Job Satisfaction Survey is to improve the quality of the professional lives of our members.

The survey consisted of 29 questions relating to job satisfaction at schools and offices and demographic information concerning years of service, years in the school system, membership in the HCEA, and teacher/paraprofessional/other MSDE certified. Responses to the survey were collected and ranked on a four-point scale, i.e. Strongly Agree, Agree, Disagree, and Strongly Disagree. An additional choice was provided for a response of “not applicable”. All surveys were anonymous. 3,671 (54%) surveys were completed compared to 2,835 (49%) for the 2007-2008 year. Surveys were sorted by school and entered into a master database for analysis. While most surveys had all items completed, many were incomplete, with some items left unchecked.

The analysis of the data was performed by Jean M. Castagnoli, Ph.D. and James B. Harper, M.D., M.Ed. The data has been shared with Mrs. Sandie French, Mr. Allen Dyer, Dr. Sydney Cousin, Mrs. Sandy Erickson, Mrs. Linda Wise, Mrs. Mamie Perkins, area coordinators, all building administrators, and HCEA members.

With the exception of Central Office, Faulkner Ridge, and Burleigh Manor Middle School; all data is considered valid and reliable.

Below are the site rankings for question #1, “Overall Morale is Good” and question #3, “Speak Openly Without Repercussions.” Both highest and lowest rankings have been provided. It is interesting to note that morale is highest in sites where individuals can speak openly without repercussions.
